Faculty Spotlight . . .

Kenneth Waltzer is the Director of the Center for Integrative Studies in the Arts and Humanities in the College of Arts and Letters.

Recently, Waltzer shared his thoughts on challenges and opportunities of the past, present, and future.

What are your responsibilities as Director of the Center for Integrative Studies?

My responsibilities are to oversee, lead, and coordinate faculty activities in general education in the arts and humanities at MSU, and to help build the center as a vital intellectual arena for cross-disciplinary teaching in the humanities.

How do your new responsibilities relate to your past experiences in Madison?

Such new responsibilities are in some ways an extension of my former roles in Madison, which were to integrate historical knowledge and thinking with multidisciplinary work in the so-

JMC Teacher Scholar Award

Professor Julia Grant is the second recipient of James Madison College's Teacher Scholar Award. The award recognizes excellence in teaching and includes a $500 stipend. Professor Grant will present a paper on "Education Begins at the Dinner Table:

Reflections on Three Decades of Learning" to the Board of Visitors and College family on Sunday, October 5, 1997 at 4:00pm in rooms 334 A&B of Case Hall.

MSU Seeks to Fill the Position of Dean, James Madison College

Michigan State University invites applications and nominations for the position of Dean, James Madison College. The University seeks a teacher-scholar who can provide intellectual and deliberative leadership to a faculty committed to the highest standards in undergraduate liberal education and to scholarly excellence. The Dean is the College's chief executive officer and is responsible for educational, research, and service programs; personnel matters within the College; budget; and physical facilities. He/she is expected to teach in Madison. The Dean is responsible to the Provost and the President for the general administration of the College.

Applicants must have an earned doctorate (or another appropriate terminal degree) in one of the social sciences or related fields, such as history, philosophy, or public policy; a record of outstanding teaching and strong academic scholarship; a demonstrated commitment to advancing excellence in undergraduate liberal education; and successful administrative experience. Candidates must meet the standards for appointment at the rank of professor (with tenure) in the College, in an academic department or school within the University, or both. The expected starting date is July 1, 1998, or as soon as possible thereafter.

Applications and nominations are requested as soon as possible, preferably by October 1, 1997. Applications should include a letter of interest and a curriculum vitae. A sample of scholarship is highly desirable. Applications and nominations should be sent to:

Prof. Eric Petrie
Chair JMC Search & Rating Committee
c/o Office of the Provost, 308 Administration Building
Michigan State University
E Lansing, MI 48824-1046

Board of Visitor Members Receive MSUAA Awards

Gordon Guyer is the recipient of the Distinguished Alumni Award from MSU. It is the highest recognition offered by the MSUAA to alumni. The College nominated Guyer for his professional accomplishments, personal integrity, and volunteer service to the College. Guyer is a graduate of the College of Natural Science. The award will be presented at the CNS commencement ceremony during the weekend of May 8-9, 1998.

Dixie Platt is the recipient of the Honorary Alumni Award. The award applauds the exemplary voluntary service to MSU by non graduates of the University. Although Platt was an employee of the College for well over 25 years, her commitment during that time and since has demonstrated that Madison was more than "just a job." Platt, along with the other awardees, will be recognized at the MSUAA Recognition Dinner on Friday, October 3, 1997.

James Madison College will recognize the accomplishments and contributions of Gordon Guyer and Dixie Platt during the JMCAA Recognition Luncheon on Friday, October 3, 1997.

Welcome Aboard

The Fall semester has brought many new faces to Madison. Join the College in welcoming new faculty and staff to the team!

Melissa Bankroff joined the College in July. Bankroff is pursuing a Master of Anthropology degree and comes to the College from the Office of Financial Aid. She is the half time development assistant.

Allison Berg, Assistant Professor, received her Ph.D. in English from Indiana University. Berg's research focuses on early 20th century U.S. literature & social history, particularly issues of race, gender, and sexuality. She published articles on William Faulkner, Pauline Hopkins, and the Harlem Renaissance, and is working on a book about race & motherhood in early 20th century fiction.

Aaron Brenner, Assistant Professor, earned his History Ph.D. from Columbia University. Brenner's interests include 20th century American social, political, and economic history. His research focuses on the workplace and political activity of American workers since World War II. As a result of this research, he is revising a book for publication, to be called Rank-and-File Rebellion, 1966-75. He also researched the African-American civil rights movement, particularly the history of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc.

Gene Burns, Associate Professor, earned a Ph.D. in Sociology at the Univ. of Pennsylvania. His research interests include moral conflict, reproductive politics, social movements and revolutions, and social change within Roman Catholicism. Burns is the author of The Frontiers of Catholicism: The Politics of Ideology in a Liberal World. Currently, Burns is completing a book on conflict over contraception and abortion in the 20th century U.S.

Kevin A. Cloonan, Visiting Assistant Professor and Research Fellow, recently earned his Ph.D. in Political Science from The Claremont Graduate School. Cloonan's dissertation, "Jimmy Carter and the MX Debate: Passions that Move American Strategy," combined his research interests in American Government, Defense, the Presidency, and Political Philosophy. He is a former Air Force Captain, and was a 1995-1996 Earhart Fellow.

Louise Jezierski, Assistant Professor, obtained a Ph.D. from the University of California-Berkeley in Sociology. Jezierski's areas of specialization include urban and community sociology, social stratification, political economy, social theory and social movements. She published numerous articles on political and community sociology and has forthcoming a book, Imagination and Consent: Reinventing the Post-Industrial City.

Lucy Ramsey has worked full and part-time at MSU for 25 yrs. while putting herself through school. She is an alumna of MSU, with a B.A. in Social Work and a M.A. in Counseling. Most recently Ramsey joined us from the College of Communication Arts. Since January she has made herself at home as the secretary in the Offices of Admissions and Field Experience.

Armilla Simon joined the College in January. She is the secretary for Ann Minnick the Office of Academic & Student Affairs and Connie Hunt in the Office of Institutional Planning. Previously Simon was employed in the College of Criminal Justice.

cial sciences, and to work with faculty from several disciplines in undergraduate education. In some ways, they are new, and involve doing new things in the arts and humanities, mentoring graduate student teachers, and helping integrate technology into humanities teaching.

Given your new responsibilities, what will your relationship be with Madison?

I hope my relation with MC will continue to be close and committed. My tenure home remains in MC, and I will continue to be appointed 25%, teaching one course annually, advising MC students, and reading field experience, independent study, and honors papers. I will continue to be a member of the Social Relations field and the Madison faculty. I also hope I can serve to build new linkages between MC and the College of Arts and Letters, since I will be in both places.

What will you miss most and least about Madison?

I will miss most about MC interacting with committed, serious students in a residential college environment and working with talented colleagues who view teaching undergraduates as a noble mission. But I look forward to working with talented faculty in Arts & Letters, to mentoring graduate student teachers in the humanities, and to exploring some personal creative interests and talents in the arts and music. I will have the best of both worlds -- membership in a residential college and a role in improving undergraduate education more generally at MSU.

Professor Curtis Stokes is back in the College after a three year visit at Columbia University in NY. While at Columbia University Stokes was affiliated with the Institute for Research in African-American Studies, whose Director is Professor Manning Marable. Stokes served as Assistant Director of African-American Studies, taught three courses per academic year, and was Senior Editor of the Institute's scholarly journal, Race and Reason. He is currently completing a book, Black Leadership: The Failure of Theory and Practice (Garland Publishers, 1998).

Effective July 1, Stokes was promoted to the rank of Associate Professor.

Alumni Association Update

Elections for new board members will take place on Saturday, October 4 at 10am in the JMC Library. Elections occur every year at the annual meeting. This year the annual meeting coincides with the 30th Anniversary Celebration. All JMCAA meetings are open to the entire Madison family, however, only JMCAA members may vote in the election.

Regional Activity

If you would like to host a regional alumni interest meeting in your area, contact Alumni Relations for details.

NY Area Chapter . . . Hello from New York City! The JMCAA NY Area Chapter has twelve active members. What is so interesting about the New York group is that we have a diverse group. We have alumni employed in law, investment banking, software development, and attending law school. By the time students are looking for internships in the Winter, we should have a variety of opportunities in NYC!

In our efforts to introduce students to the "real world" side of finance, Alex Shire, president of the chapter, is donating financial software to the College. Hopefully the software will become an integral part of the PE program and find a home in the Case Hall Computer Lab. From all of us in New York, we welcome the incoming freshmen class and hope that you take full advantage of the incredible education that JMC has to offer.- Alex Shire (PE, '96)

If you reside in NY, NJ, or CT and want to touch base with your Madison roots, contact Alex Shire at 212-907-1688 or Robert Dye at dye-rober@juno.com.

Metro Washington, D.C. Alumni Chapter . . . The Metro Washington Chapter of the JMCAA held it's first big event on Sunday September 7th. Nineteen people attended the BBQ picnic held at Lubber Run Park in Arlington, VA. A special thanks to all those who helped make this event possible.

The chapter will be meeting on Monday, October 6th at 7:30 pm to discuss future events. For more information contact Adrienne Rakotz at 703-549-2939, or e-mail arakotz@logicon.com

Madisonians Hiring Madisonians

Do you have a job opportunity that you would like to share with Madison graduates? If so, that information can now be viewed via the JMCAA home page. In addition to association news, paraphernalia for sale, and programming updates, the site now serves as a medium to post job opportunities OR positions wanted.

The request for this type of service is very popular among recent graduates and alumni who are leaving entry level positions and trying to enter mid-management. Only through the support of alumni, faculty and friends can this service reach its true potential. If you would like to advertise using this free medium, please contact Alumni Relations at the College. Current positions can be viewed at <http://www.jmc.msu.edu/alumni>

Alumni Career Night

Every fall local alumni are invited to share their professional experiences with current students. Last year the event was held in Career Services and Placement to a record crowd of over 70 students! If you would like to share your career experiences and/or employment/field experience opportunities with Madison students, contact Lucy Ramsey at 517-353-6757 and request to be added to the mailing list. This year's program will be held on October 21 in Career Services and Placement.

Much gratitude is extended to Jo Fredericks (IR, '72) and MI Capital Healthcare for being the corporate sponsor of this year's event.

- ⇒ Jeffrey Kovan is the new Director of MSU Sports Medicine.
- ⇒ MSU's Comprehensive Breast Health Clinic provides newly diagnosed breast cancer patients with the "bear" necessities. "To bring a little comfort to what can be a very scary situation" the clinic provides teddy bears to new patients, said Janet Osuch and Laura Morris. These women are physicians in the clinic and creators of the program.
- ⇒ MSU is top in students studying abroad. Almost 1,000 students participated in summer study abroad programs. MSU's ranking is based on the Institute of International Education research.
- ⇒ MSU's only Noble Prize winner has died. Alfred Day Hershey conducted undergraduate and doctoral studies at MSU in the 1930's. He received the Noble Prize in 1969 for virus genetic structure and replication. The Prize was shared with Salvador Luria and Max Delbruck.
- ⇒ The Red Cedar Log turns 100 years young in 1998. The yearbook will be the first at MSU in three years.
- ⇒ Think MSU food stinks? Think again. According to the 1997 National Association of College and University Food Services Dining Contest, MSU is numero uno! This is the first time that "U" won the award.

The Press Box

- ⇒ Mike Watt is seeing green and it is not at MSU. The former MSU hockey left winger has opted to turn pro vs. a senior year of play at MSU. Watt went in the second round of the draft to the Edmonton Oilers.
- ⇒ The MSUAA has coordinated "Away Game Tailgate Parties" for the following games: Notre Dame, Indiana, Northwestern, Purdue, and the Univ. of Illinois. For more info on the tailgate parties and ordering details, contact 517-355-8314.

Founders Circle

A hearty welcome is extended to Randall Smith (JMCD,'73) for his new membership in the Founders Circle. His generous contributions place him in the James Madison Associates and have established the newest endowment in the College, the Randall Smith Endowed Fund. Smith is President of Information Resources, Inc. in Chicago.

If you, or someone you know, is interested in joining the Founders Circle, please contact the College.

Please join the College in wishing farewell and good luck to Ms Lenore Ojibway, Director of Development. After serving the College for one year, Ms Ojibway decided to pursue opportunities in research at the University Development Office.

A search is currently underway for a new Director of Development. In the meantime, your questions and gifts may be forwarded to Melissa Bankroff at 517-353-3381.

Student Spotlight . . . Students Publish National Journal

James Madison College students Gavin McLaughlin and Geoffrey Wyatt are creators of the latest journal sweeping through high schools in the mid-west. MIFA Unauthorized Debate Journal (M-U) is a student run publication catered toward high school debate students and coaches. M-U regularly features articles written by debaters around the globe. The Spring 1997 issue features an article written by a Madison student, Alison R. Woidan. She shares her thoughts in "Renewable Energy: Topic Analysis."

JMC Scene recently interviewed M-U's creators. JMC-How long has M-U been in existence and what inspired you to create the journal?

M-U came into being in the summer of 1995. It actually began as simple web page (which still exists though at the moment is horribly out of date). The journal didn't come along until early 1996. The purpose of the journal is to promote discussion of the state of high school debate in Michigan and to make a name for ourselves.

JMC-How do you balance publishing a quarterly journal and the demanding schedule of being a Madison student?

Keeping the journal going has by far been the most challenging part of M-U. Although we have a small support staff, they all have lives of their own and we pretty much do everything we can and accept help whenever it is offered. The physical production of the journal isn't all that difficult - finding advertisers and getting people to submit articles on time has been very frustrating. The rush times tend to be the week before each issue is published - it's often necessary to go for a couple days without sleep.

JMC-What has it been like to manage staff at your age? What challenges have you encountered and how were they overcome?

At any given time, there are between four and ten other members on staff. Managing a volunteer staff has proven difficult - new additions to the staff tend to quit once they realize that we actually need their help. Those who have stayed with it - there are about three or four of them - are all amazing people. They always manage to plug in the holes right before the whole thing seems to be collapsing. In particular, we would like to thank Katy Hoffman, Jennifer Sykes, Alison Woidan, and Ellen Zwarenstein for all their help.

JMC-What are your plans for M-U in three years when you graduate?

At some point we hope to find someone who can take over. We have a few people in mind who will be entering college either this year or in 1998. Hopefully M-U will continue after we move on. It would be great to pick up an issue of the journal years from now and think, "Hey, we started this."

JMC-How do you determine which articles go to print?

We solicit articles from specific members of the debate community more often than we receive articles from which a selection has to be made. In most cases, any article we receive makes it in eventually. Even if submissions were to substantially increase, the journal could probably expand to accommodate this change. We welcome articles from individuals outside of the debate community as well - for example, anyone with strong feelings about the future of renewable energy could probably contribute to any of the next four issues of the journal, since that is this year's high school debate topic.

JMC-What has been your greatest success with M-U?

We held a small tournament and banquet for the Michigan high school community last Spring at Case Hall. It seemed doomed to fail right up until the very end, and it ended up running smoothly. We hope to repeat the event this year.

JMC-Who is the greatest debater of all time and why?

We both think that JMC graduate Elizabeth "Biza" Repko (IR,'96) is the best debater we've ever seen. To understand why in some ways requires you to know a lot about the activity, but in other ways not. She is a very charismatic, hard-working and simply brilliant individual - all of these paid off big time in debate. She is without exaggeration the person who made Michigan State debate what it is today, and it is a contribution to which the university does not pay enough

Students Leading The Pack!!!

Glamour Magazine selected Julie Egan as a semi-finalist (25 of 500) for the Glamour Top Ten College Women Contest. Egan, along with Amanda Sloat (PTCD,'97), was also selected as a Fellow for the Center for the Study of the Presidency.

Writing consultants Beau Kilmer, Angel Grays, and Jenna Ravani presented papers at the East Central Writing Centers Association Conference in Pittsburgh, April 17-19. The session was entitled "Satellite Writing Centers Are Out of this World." Excerpts of this presentation were featured in the Spring 1997 issue of JMC Scene.

attention. If there ever is a debate building on campus (you laugh but a lot of universities have them), it should be built in her name.

JMC-Anything else you want the Madison family to know about yourselves and/or M-U?

The management of Case Hall has done a lot to help this project get off the ground by helping us with our tournament last Spring. Anyone who is interested in debate or even in teaching high school students should stop by next year and watch what goes on - it truly is amazing.

In closing, MIFA Unauthorized is always looking for more help. If any students are former debaters or self-appointed renewable energy experts, they should feel more than welcome to lend a hand if they so desire.

For more information on M-U contact Geoff and Gavin at wy-

Faculty Finds

In July, William Allen testified in US House hearings on Reauthorization of the US Commission on Civil Rights. He also participated on a panel for the James Madison Memorial Fellowship Foundation on "Race, Slavery, and the Constitution." He was joined on the panel by US Senator Edward Kennedy and Prof. Ron Walters of the Univ. of MD.

The 1997 Oxford International Round Table on Residential Colleges invited Dean Allen to join other leaders for a five-day think tank. The group examined several key issues central to residential colleges: (1) the needs, objectives, and implementation of a residential college system; (2) specialized programs and services which focus on student learning; (3) the impact of student/faculty interactions on the educational process; (4) use of technologies to complement the learning process; and, (5) the recognition of learning style differences and their impact for student learning in a residential setting.

These five criteria also served as the focal point of the 1997 Faculty Retreat held in August at Glen Arbor.

Peter Dorman was the keynote speaker for the European Conference on Costs and Benefits of Occupational Safety and Health. The conference was held May 28-30 in The Hague, Netherlands. Dorman was a discussant June 17-20 at the Managing Ergonomics in the 1990s Conference in Cincinnati. He also served as a panelist with the National Research Council panel on the Health and Safety Implications of Child Labor, June 24-27, 1997. Most of August, Dorman was in Geneva working with the Int'l Labor Organization (ILO) on their project to develop a World Report on Occupational Safety and Health.

Cary Federman accepted a position at Duquesne University in Pittsburgh, PA. Federman is an Assistant Professor in the Political Science Department.

M. Julia Grant was promoted to Associate Professor with the award of tenure effective July 1.

Okey Iheduru attended the 1st Maguire Oil and Gas Institute Education Initiative for college faculty at Southern Methodist University in Dallas from July 12-16, 1997. Professors were introduced to the oil and gas industries for the purpose of teaching and research.

Grant Littke visited the JMC Overseas Study program entitled "Political and Economic Transitions in Eastern Europe." Littke spent a week in Budapest and Prague learning how to advise students pursuing overseas study. While in the Czech Republic, he visited Palacky University in Olomouc and furthered a series of discussions regarding Madison and the establishment of a semester-long program in Central European Studies.

Brian Meeks returned to the University of the West Indies, Mona after a two year appointment in the College. Meeks is Chair of the Department of Government, which includes the sub-disciplines of political science, political theory, international relations and public administration.

Eric S. Petrie was promoted to Associate Professor with the award of tenure effective July 1. He is also Chair of the Search and Rating Committee for Dean.

Michael G. Schechter participated in the annual meeting of the Academic Council on the United Nations System (ACUNS) in San Jose, Costa Rica on June 26-27, 1997.

Schechter organized and chaired two panels on Global and Comparative Civil Society for the meetings. Kimberly Stanton (IR,'79), a PhD candidate in Political Science (Univ. of Chicago), served as the discussant on both of the panels. Stanton commented on papers written in English and Spanish.

Among the papers presented on the panels were these by Madison faculty:

- ⇒ "Globalization and Civil Society," Michael G. Schechter,
- ⇒ "Global Civil Society and Theories of International Political Economy," Jonas Zoninsein,
- ⇒ "Globalization and Civil Society in Hungary and the Czech Republic," Norman Graham, and
- ⇒ "Civil Society, The State and Caribbean Political Culture," Folke Lindahl.

The aforementioned papers are currently being revised for inclusion in a book to be edited by Michael G. Schechter. It is tentatively entitled, "The Revival of Civil Society:

Perspectives on Global and Comparative Civil Society."

In addition to those chapters and two by Costa Rican colleagues, there will be the following:

- ⇒ "Civil Society and the Idea of a Commercial Republic," Louis Hunt,
- ⇒ "Globalization and Transnational Underground Economies: Consequences for States and Civil Societies," Okey Iheduru, and
- ⇒ "Promoting Civil Society: Concepts and Practice," Kimberly Stanton.

Schechter wrote "When Navigating the World, Don't Just Give Them a Few Wonderful Sites: Reflections on Teaching, Learning, the WWW and the International Studies Curriculum." The article appeared in the Spring 1997 (Vol. 22, No. 2) issue of International Studies Notes and was co-authored by J. Greg Merritt.

If Merritt sounds familiar, it is because he was the former Complex Director for Case Hall. Greg is completing his PhD in Higher Education at MSU.

The paper draws on experience gained from workshops that Schechter and Merritt conducted for faculty at Oregon State, Northern Illinois and Virginia Tech Universities, as well as developing their own web pages for working with students in various classes.

On April 11, 1997, Schechter chaired a panel at the annual meetings of the American Society of International Law. The panel was on the Implementation and Effectiveness of United Nations Sponsored World Conferences.

A fellow panelist was Thomas Yongo (IR,'90) who holds an LLB from the University of Kent and an LLM from the University of London. Yongo is a barrister currently working in Montreal with the Secretariat of the United Nations Convention on Biological Diversity. His presentation focused on the Rio Convention.

Both sets of remarks will be published in the 1997 Proceedings of the Annual Meeting of the American Society of International Law.
